2.3. Qualifications

In a Contest, everyone climbs at the same time.

Each participant has around 25 boulders to complete (the number varies depending on the category) in a given time (2 h 30). The difficulty of the boulders ranges from 5+ to 8a. There's no limit to the number of attempts on each boulder, so participants can try the boulders as many times as they want. The number of runs is not counted, and there are no zones.

Only successes count.

Each boulder is worth 1000 points, divided by the number of people who sent the boulder.

The number of points each participant scores is calculated according to the number of boulders sent and the value of each boulder.

The ranking is based on the number of points scored by each participant.

The qualification phases are self-judged. Key boulders may be monitored. Results forms (to be filled in online) are to be handed in at the end of the qualifications. Boulders sent after this time will not be counted.

Each competitor will fill in his or her own results on an online form given on the day of the competition. 6 women and 6 men will be selected for the U16 and over finals.

The qualification phase is the same as the final phase for competitors in the U12 and U14 categories (Junior Contest).

U12 and U14 competitors will climb on the Junior boulders, and the competition will be called Junior Contest.

The U16 and over compete in the same category, the competition is called Senior Contest, and there will be one and only one common podium for the Senior Contest.

2.4. Ranking

Contestants in the U12 and U14 categories will have to send as many boulders as they can among 16 boulders. Contestants in both categories will climb at the same time but there will be separate rankings and podiums.

Contestants in the U16 and above categories will compete on the same boulders. They will have to send as many boulders as possible among the 20 qualification boulders. Each boulder has an initial value of 1,000 points. This value will be divided by the number of contestants who send the boulder. Thus, a bloc sent by 10 contestants will have a final value of 100 points.

The 6 highest scoring men and the 6 highest scoring women in the Senior competition will be qualified for the finals.
